

Abstract

A flower supporting device. A plurality of rotatable beads are connected by connection means having elasticity so 5 that a support body is formed. A plurality of support bodies are arranged to be staggered up and down with each other so that a stem of a flower can be inserted between adjoining supporting bodies to be supported by them.